Born in Milan in 1979, after a 5years degree in Industrial Design, I've spent almost last 20 years working with advertising companies, on national and international clients and projects.

I born as a natural traditional creative, and I still have a straight link with ink and paper; I involved with digital projects always more, 'till I became a digital art director too, with a great expertise on UI and UX of apps and websites. In latest years I definitely grow up on marketing strategies, with great attention on planning creativities and classplatform production.

I'm firmly sure that creativity can't be defined in "classic", "paper" or "digital": a modern art director/creative director must see them as different faces of the same inspiration, fluid as the world we're living in.
